Consultation is now open and will continue through to 6 September 2024. After that time this draft publication, including related content, will be removed from the ABS website.

Access to provide feedback and a guide to providing feedback on the draft classification can be found on the ABS Consultation Hub \(https://web.archive.org/web/20240725053848/https://consult.abs.gov.au/standards-and-classifications/anzsco-comprehensive-review-round-4/\).

The ABS is pleased to present the draft revised Australian and New Zealand Standard Classification of Occupations (ANZSCO). We have heard from over 600 stakeholders from across the Australian labour market in consultation held throughout 2023. What we heard has directly shaped the structure of the draft revised ANZSCO and the occupations it contains.

Comparison between the draft revised ANZSCO and ANZSCO 2022

This table indicates the number of categories at each level of the draft revised ANZSCO and ANZSCO 2022.

Hierarchical Level	Draft revised ANZSCO	ANZSCO 2022
Major Group	8	8
Sub-Major Group	53	43
Minor Group	111	99
Unit Group	422	364
Occupation	1 150	1 076

The conceptual basis of the draft revised ANZSCO is the same as that of previous versions of ANZSCO and can be accessed at Conceptual basis of ANZSCO | Australian Bureau of Statistics \(abs.gov.au\) \(https://web.archive.org/web/20240725053848/https://www.abs.gov.au/statistics/classifications/anzsco-australian-and-new-zealand-standard-classification-occupations/2022/conceptual-basis-anzsco\).

Changes from previous ANZSCO review publications

On 17 June 2024 we published documents on the ABS Consultation Hub showing preliminary proposed changes to the classification. Since those documents were published we have undertaken further quality assurance processes which have resulted in some changes. These changes are largely editorial and do not substantively alter what has previously been presented. Four changes of note are:

- The occupation Volunteer Coordinator was omitted from previous publications so is presented here for the first time.
- The skill level presented for two occupations, Aged Care Team Leader and Community Aged Care Support Worker, were incorrect and have been corrected.
- All not elsewhere classified (nec) categories have been revised to align with the structure of the draft revised ANZSCO.

Additional resources

We have provided two data downloads to support users in providing feedback on the draft revised ANZSCO.

Please note that these files are intended to enable users to interpret changes to the classification in order to provide feedback on the draft revised ANZSCO and must not be used for other purposes. For this reason, data downloads are only available until 6 September 2024.

Final versions of these files, along with additional correspondences, will be published along with the finalised classification in December 2024.

241232 Geotechnical Engineer

Plans, directs, and conducts survey work to analyse the mechanics of soil and rock, and its applications to engineering problems to support the safe and efficient design and construction of infrastructure projects.

Registration or licensing may be required.

ANZSCO skill level

This occupation has a skill level corresponding to the qualifications and experience below.

Australia

- Skill Level 1: Bachelor Degree, higher qualification, or at least five years of relevant experience

New Zealand

- Skill Level 1: Bachelor Degree, higher qualification, or at least five years of relevant experience

Main tasks

- Assesses construction plans to determine its feasibility based on the understanding of the construction site gathered from geological maps, aerial photographs, project data, collected historical information, and other sources
- Collects and tests soil and rock samples to determine their properties and assist in the assessment of geotechnical parameters used in design
- Assesses the impact of soil and rock mechanical properties on the stability of existing structures
- Performs geotechnical calculations and modelling to evaluate the characteristics of the site under study, and use the results from their analysis to design foundations and other geotechnical structures
- Investigates, identifies, and analyses geological risks and hazards related to the site, such as landslides, liquefaction, or soil erosion
- Develops strategies to minimise risks and recommend appropriate safety measures, such as drainage systems, soil improvement techniques, and slope stabilisation methods, to incorporate in the project design

241332 Rail Signalling Engineer

Develops systems used to signal and control trains, including equipment on tracks, computer networks, and fail-safes. Controls railroad traffic by coordinating between systems and rail companies to keep trains operating safely and smoothly.

Registration or licensing may be required.

Rail Engineers are excluded from this occupation. Rail Engineers are included in Occupation 241233 Rail Engineer.

Alternative title

- Signalling Engineer

ANZSCO skill level

This occupation has a skill level corresponding to the qualifications and experience below.

Australia

- Skill Level 1: Bachelor Degree, higher qualification, or at least five years of relevant experience

New Zealand

- Skill Level 1: Bachelor Degree, higher qualification, or at least five years of relevant experience

Main tasks

- Designs, implements, and solves technical problems with rail signalling systems
- Provides technical advice and retrofits existing signalling systems to update them, either in response to regulations or to improve efficiency and performance
- Ensures that the rail signalling design conforms to all safety, environmental, construction, commissioning, and operational requirements
- Prepares and reviews the signalling design with appropriate solutions to satisfy customer specifications, such as signalling arrangement plans, power calculations, headway signalling spacing calculations, and circuit designs
- Engages with stakeholders to discuss rail signal plans and prepares case studies to understand specifics of signalling installation
- Oversees the maintenance and operations of rail signalling equipment, and investigates equipment faults
- Assists the construction team with on-site signalling equipment installation, testing, or commissioning
- Researches, develops, and optimises electrical, control, and signalling systems

- May oversee tender preparation, including ensuring all technical elements of the tender are coordinated between design, testing, commissioning, and construction team members

241931 Acoustic Engineer

Studies and applies the science of sound and vibration in the design and development of technologies to solve acoustic related problems, such as sound quality, transmission of sound, noise control, or environmental noise pollution.

Registration or licensing may be required.

This occupation has a skill level corresponding to the qualifications and experience below.

Australia

- Skill Level 1: Bachelor Degree, higher qualification, or at least five years of relevant experience

New Zealand

- Skill Level 1: Bachelor Degree, higher qualification, or at least five years of relevant experience

Main tasks

- Measures sound levels, reverberation, and vibration within buildings and outdoor environments
- Analyses and performs tests on acoustic designs to enhance or control sound and vibration
- Models, predicts, measures, and assesses the impact of noise on the environment and noise sensitive receptors, including wildlife
- Advises on materials and structures that can be used to minimise noise levels that could disrupt the local environment, and ensure those levels comply with local laws
- Designs noise and vibration attenuation solutions for environmental noise, building engineering services systems in buildings, transport infrastructure, and industry

244534 Hydrologist

Monitors, measures, analyses, models, describes, and quantifies the Earth's underground and surface water systems, and their interactions with the water cycle, including human use and management of water resources.

Specialisations

- Hydrogeologist
- Groundwater Modeller

This occupation has a skill level corresponding to the qualifications and experience below.

Australia

- Skill Level 1: Bachelor Degree, higher qualification, or at least five years of relevant experience

New Zealand

- Skill Level 1: Bachelor Degree, higher qualification, or at least five years of relevant experience

Main tasks

- Collects, analyses, and interprets groundwater or surface water data
- Studies the distribution, and physical and chemical properties of surface water and groundwater
- Identifies the location of groundwater reservoirs and other water bodies, and assists in their exploration
- Studies the quality of water, and develops methods to ensure water is safe for human consumption or other applications
- Assists in the planning and development of water supply to urban areas
- Uses models to predict the impact of human activities, such as mining and construction on groundwater and surface water, and advises on the avoidance or mitigation of those impacts

244631 Biotechnologist

Studies the anatomy, physiology, genetics, and characteristics of living organisms and isolated biological molecules to improve or develop new products and processes in a wide range of industries, including agriculture, food production, and medicine.

Specialisations

- Bioinformatician
- Molecular Biologist

ANZSCO skill level

This occupation has a skill level corresponding to the qualifications and experience below.

Australia

- Skill Level 1: Bachelor Degree, higher qualification, or at least five years of relevant experience

New Zealand

- Skill Level 1: Bachelor Degree, higher qualification, or at least five years of relevant experience

Main tasks

- Studies, analyses, and manipulates genes to develop new drugs
- Analyses and models large datasets of molecular and genomic sequences to identify patterns
- Researches, develops, and creates new products in biotechnology
- Identifies and improves industrial use of genetic attributes of cells and organisms
- Uses computational methods to develop new or improve existing software tools and algorithms used in the analysis of large datasets of biological data
- Researches, develops, and improves biodegradable materials

- Genetically modifies crops to improve pest resistance and increase productivity
